The receiuing of Iames the sixt and his Queene at Lyeth in Scotland, the first of May last past, together with the Coronation of the Scottish Queene.

The King arrived at Lyeth the first day of May, Anno 1590. With the Queene his wife and his traine in thir-teene shippes, accompanied with Peter Munck Admirall of Denmarke, one of the Regentes of the King, Steuen Braue a Danish Lorde, and sundry other the Lordes of the same countrey, where at they: arriuall, they were welcommed by the Duke of Lenox, the Earle Bothwell, and sundry other the Scottish nobility. At their landing one M. Iames Elpheston a Senator of the Colledge of Justice, with a latine Oration welcom-med them into the Countrey, which done, the King went on to the Church of Lyeth, where they had a Sermon preached by maister Patrick Galloway in English, importing a thanksgiving for their safe arriuall, and so they departed to their lodging, where they expected the comming in of the rest of the nobility, together with such preparation as was to bee prouided in Edinborough, and the Abbey of the Holy Rood house.

This performed and the nobility ioyning to the towndship of Edinborough, they receaued the King and Queene from the towne of Lyeth, the King riding before and the Queene bee-hinde him in her Chariot with her maides of Honor of ech side of her Maiesties one. Her Chariot was drawne with eight horses, capparisoned in velvet, imbroided with silver and gold, very rich, her Highnesse maister of her houshould and other Danish Ladies on the one side, and the Lorde Hamilton, on the other, together with the rest of the Nobility, and after her Chariot, followed the Lorde Chancelours wife, the Lady Bothwell, and other the Ladies, with the Burgeses of the towne, and others round about her, as of Edinbrough, of Lyeth, of Fishrow, of Wilebrow, of Preston, of Dalkith, &c. All the inhabitants bring in armour, and giuing a volle of shotte to the King and Queene in their passage, in ioy of their safe arriual. In this manner they passed to the Abbey of Holy Rood house, where they remained untill the seauen-teenth of May, vppon which day the Queene was crowned in the saide Abbey Church, after the sermon was ended by Maister Robert Bruce, and M. David Linsey, with great triumphes. The Coronation ended she was comide to her chamber, being led by the Lord Chancelor on the one side, and the Embassador of Englande on the other, sixe Ladies bearing vpper thei. . . . . hauing going before her twelue Heraultes in their Coates of Armes and sundrye trumpets still sounding. The Earle of Angus bare the sword of Honor, the L. Hamilton y Scepter, and the Duke of Lenox, the Crowne. Thus was that day spent in ioy and mirth.

 Vppon tuesday the nineteenth of May, her Maiesty made her entry into Edinbrough in her Chariot, with the Lordes and Nobility giuing their attendance, among the which ther were sixe and thirtie Dames on horsebacke, with foote clothes, cue-ry of them being accompanied with some Scottishe Lorde or knight, and all the Ladies following the Chariot. At her comming to the South side of the yardes of the Canogit along the parke wall being in sight of the Castle, they gaue her thence a great volle of shotte with their banners and auncientes displayed vppon the walles. Thence she came to the West Port, vnder the which her Highnesse staid, and had an Oration to welcome her to the towne, vttered in Latine by one maister Iohn Russell, who was thereto appointed by the towneshippe, whose sonne also being placed vppon the toppe of the

the Bozte head, & was let downe by a deuise made in a globe, which being come somewhat ouer her Maiesties heade, opened at the toppc into foure quarters, where the childe appearing in the resemblance of an Angell, deliuered her the keyes of the towne in Silver, which done, the quarters closed, and the Globe was taken vpe agayne, so as the childe was no more seene there. Shee had also a Canapie of purple veluet embroidered with gold, carried ouer her by foure ancient Townes-men. There were also thre score young men of the towne lyke Moyses, and clothed in cloth of Silver, with chaines about their neckes, and bracelets about their armes, set with Diamonds and other precious stones verie gorgeous to the eie, who went before the Chariot betwixt the horsemen and it, euery one with a white staffe in his hande, to keepe of the throng of people, where also rid the Mayor and Bailiues of the towne with foute clothes, to keepe the people in good order, with most of the inhabitants in their best arraie to doe the like. In this order her Grace passed on the Bow street, where was erected a table, whereupon stode a Globe of the whole worlde, with a boy sitting therby, who represented the person of a king, and made her an Oration, which done, she went by the Bowe, wher were cast forth a ruber of banketing dishes as they came by, and coming to the Butter trene, there were placed nine maidens brauely arraid in cloth of silver and gold, representing the nine Muses, who sung verie swete musike, where a braue youth played vpon the Organs, which accorded excellently with the singing of their Psalms, whereat her Maiestie staid a while, and thence passed downe through the high gate of Edinbrough, which was all decked with Tapistrie from the top to the bottom: At her Graces coming to the Tolbooth there stood on high the four vertues, as first Justice with the ballance in one hand, and the sword of Justice in the other, then Temperance hauing in the one hand a cup of wine, and in the other hande a cup of water. Prudence holding in her hand a Serpent and a Dove, declaring that men ought to bee as wise as the Serpent to preuent daunger, but as simple as the Dove, eyther in wrath or malice. The last is Fortitude who held a broken pillar in her hand, representing the strength of a kingdome.

Thus shee passed on to the Crosse, vpon the topp whereof shee had a Palme sung in verie good Musicke before her conning to the Church, which done, her Maietie came forth of hir Chariot, and was conueied vnto S. Giles Church, where she heard a Sermon preached by M. Robert Bruce. That ended, with prayers for her Highnesse, shee was conueied againe to her Chariot. Against her conning forth, there stood vpon the top of the Crosse a table couered, wherevpon stood cups of gold and silver full of wine, with the Goddesse of Corne and Wine sitting thereat, and the corne on heapes by her, who in Latine cried that there should be plentie thereof in her time, and on the side of the Crosse sate the God Bacchus vpon a punchion of wine, drinking and casting it by cups full vpon the people, besides other of the townsmen that cast apples and nuts among them, and the Crosse it self ranne Claret wine vpon the caulsway for the royaltie of that daie. Thence her Grace rode downe the gate to the sault trone, wherevpon sate all the Kings heertofore of Scotland, one of the loyng a long at their foete, as if he had bene sick, whom certain souldiers seemed to awake at her Maiesties conning: whereupon he arose and made her an Oration in Latine. Which ended, she passed down to the neather Bolu, which was beautified with the marage of a King and his Quene with all their Nobilitie about them, among whom at her Highnes presence there arose a youth who applied the same to the marriage of the King and her selfe, and so blessed that marriage. Which done, there was let downe vnto her from the top of the porte in a silke string a box conered w purple velvet. Whereupon was embzodered an A for Anna (her Maiesties name) set with Diamonds and precious stones, esteemed at twentie thousand Crownes, which the Township gaue for a present to her Highnes, and then after the singing of some Psalmes with verie good musicke, her Grace departed to the Abbey for that night.
